

I feel morning

The tender trees are pulling forth their leaves summer's at hand
worn on my sleeves
the moon is low
and the stars are falling light still afterglow
mouthed in night

A salty wind
and silence is to rest
the lightning shines
from the east to west all I have is time it's running out
the change is coming on a cloud

I feel morning
I feel morning
I feel morning
like another day

I feel morning
I feel morning
and I'll make it stay
another day

Across the sky
the nightingale will sing and love is all that you can bring on the daybreak where nothing cold can stay the fever fades
through the milky way

Soak it in
when my heart dries up overflows
my cup
